AMBDA Status

- Using their common sense to advise the school on whether it should conduct an audit, provide training in certain areas, and determine what the DPO should spend the most time doing

The DPO may also be assigned additional tasks – for example, maintaining a record of the school's processing operations.

DPOs are NOT ultimately responsible for compliance. The school is ultimately responsible for meeting the requirements of the UK GDPR, not the DPO.

Qualities and experience

- Expertise in UK data protection laws and practices, including the UK GDPR
- Understanding of the processing carried out by the school
- Understanding of information technologies and data security
- Knowledge of the school sector, and the school itself
- The ability to promote a data protection culture within the school

School's obligations regarding the DPO

- Is closely involved, in a timely manner, in all issues that relate to the protection of personal data

- Sufficient time to fulfil their duties
- A suitable budget, help from staff, and the use of premises, facilities and equipment
- That the purpose of the DPO is communicated to all staff in the school
- Access to, and support from services such as HR, legal, IT and security
- Continuous training
- A team of staff to support the DPO (depending on the size and structure of the school)
